IN MONET'S GARDEN Claude Monet, renowned French artist from the second half of the 19th and early 20th century, liked to paint the colour of the air and the changing light. Like the impressionist painters, he would set up his easel outdoors and that was where he produced most of his works. With this book and the BlinkBook application, the paintings come to life; the characters come out of their frame where you can find them in a field of poppies or in Monet's garden.

WITH VAN GOGH Van Gogh invented a painting style with bright colours that was highly expressive. He liked to observe reality so that he could distort it better. "Instead of trying to replicate exactly what is before my eyes," he said, "I use colour [...] to truly express myself." Discover the life of the painter, his inspiration, his travels and some quotes taken from his lengthy correspondence. With the free app BlinkBook, transform your colouring book into an animated cartoon to travel from Arles to Auvers-sur-Oise. Take a selfie, record your voice and become a character in Van Gogh's paintings!

PICASSO

Creating is a means of expression. For Picasso, "freedom to paint is the freedom to release a part of yourself." His works are filled with life. He created spontaneous shapes, which came from within him. By remaining close to his inner world, he detached himself from the realist representation of the world. In this Animated Colouring Book, one page = one work of art = one emotion.

INSIDE THE ARTIST'S STUDIO IN VENICE.

Throughout his life, Henri Matisse studied the use of colour and the art of drawing. The painter drew inspiration from his studio and everything around him: a fishbowl, plants and flowers, shells and statuettes... and of course, light. Through drawing, painting or cut-outs, he was looking for the best way to give his emotions a voice. In this Animated Colouring Book, discover what inspired the painter, sketch your self portrait and colour in Matisse's works.
